

PP 1118/4/11

propaganda in its own right, + leave the rekindling to another generation.

The policy of Redmond was a sane one, but our Celtic temperament cannot long tolerate any policy or any leader. We know the defects of our qualities, & now we know what we deserve, something akin to political anarchy.

On yesterday I heard a butcher say we shall soon have a meat famine, with the prices ^{now} rushing upwards height to —

Somebody I am very all George [unclear]

Carlingford,
May 12. 16

My Papa,

I rec'd your letter on my return from Berbrook on Monday. The reason why I delayed in replying was that Fr Quinn told me he was writing to you, and I presumed he was from the information you asked for.

I was unable to attend that Thursday's meeting.
I asked Fr. Quinn to give longer notice of the next meeting, and to send out a special whif. Accidents such as happened in your case are likely to recur in the short-notice advertisement of meeting.

I hardly know what to say about the effect of this unfortunate rising on the fortunes of the Gaelic League. I fear the difficulties in the way of the League will be very much increased.

If the League does not break with Sinn Féinism, I mean those who are prominent in the League, because the League as such has no relation with Sinn Féinism, I fear we must, as they say in the County, "take the fire" of the Irish language